spinning is being done and while we condemn one form we think nothing of our full embrace of the other.

What do you know about Mark Holowesko? At first glance Mark seems like just another average wealth holder of the land doesn't he? Hmm wrong. If you want to know POWER, I mean the type of power that could power the Las Vegas strip on a Friday night, then meet Bahamian Power Tycoon Mark Holowesko.

Here's where it all started, its alleged Mark once worked for a particular "firm" we're not calling any names. But let's just say in this firm he was given the daily task of consulting investors and real life tycoons. Apparently it all happened on a typical work day, Mark was filling in for the lead consultant aka his boss, who had went out to lunch while an important client was trying to reach him on their office line, lets just say this client is known to be a REAL WORLD mover and shaker. So what does Mark do, answer the call and does as he was told "fill in", talk about being at the right place at the right time, because the person on the other end of the line was in fact a "Rot" name so powerful, even if we posted it someone from BN might just get clapped. Anyway, from that day on, Mark's life changed and he eventually gained the trust of this particular family who to this day still plays a vital role in every movement of the Holoweskos. Welcome to the secret society, where true power lies.

With the Brent Symonette's interview gaining traction of all media types on social media, it's been very interesting to watch the spinners spin. Now allow us to say that the gaming houses are not the only place where spinning is being done and while we condemn one form we think nothing of our full embrace of the other.

Since Brent Symonette's interview the FNM operatives and spinners have been spinning tires in some sense making lots of noise but none of any real relevance to advance its Party from this place where it now finds itself, while in other pockets supporters have hung their heads in shame yet while others just defend with no real rhyme or reasoning because they are "FNMs". This week while we celebrated our 46th Independence the future of our nation became a part of many reflections with angry Bahamians touting they are not voting in the next General Election as both Parties have let them down. Since that interview with Symonette it would appear that perhaps those MPs who went against the grain of their political Party indeed were men of integrity being lead by some semblance of moral values. This FNM slate of candidates/MPs were suppose to be different a Party that believed in the level playing field for the people has now found itself similar in appearance to their fallen shameful counterparts whom now sit in Parliament awaiting either an early election or the next General Election that they believe will deliver them a return to power. The Opposition should note that their days removed from the controls has not been so far spent that the Bahamian people have forgotten the PLP's allegiance to their friends, family and lovers. Oh no nor have the Bahamian people forgotten the millions of dollars paid out, the unaccounted missing funds or the do what I want because I'm a PLP.....no way and while the Opposition is plotting their return they should know that, their return will be to some dark corner of Opposition Politics where they will be joined by their counterparts now opposite.

Dont get us wrong Peter PLP and Paul FNM are two cut from the same cloth and in their own words yes its the people time for a time for a change and the DNA is not it.

The DNA with its recent resignations of senior members just after their convention spells to us "Party in trouble" and what is noteworthy is in its hay day they were unable to secure a seat with their most popular PR Spokesman, Model and Leader Bran McCartney. How does a young leader whose taunt at the age of seniors leaders amongst her expect to receive full support that same from that grouping? Her reasoning of disqualification by their age and hence her entitlement to lead makes her look like both a novice and ill advised at best. Beyond a shadow of a doubt while Bahamians want more we believe they are not prepared to risk all on a political newborn whom little is known about and a Party whose slate encompasses candidates whom are political preschoolers and toddlers. Hence our lean towards a 3rd Party's possible win.

While Christie has retired little brother dinosaur Brave Davis remains at the helm as Leader and should the PLP really desire to win there must be a change in who is at its head. Perhaps a Sears led Party could secure a win at the polls for this disgraced Party. However, we are minded that the arrogance of the brainwashed Stalwarts would not support such a one, yet they embraced a I. Chester Cooper a Political newbie over more deserving options. Since Sears will not be elected then the PLP must accept they will remain banished to political opposition wilderness without a map or guide to return them to the promised land. Can you imagine a new Party with the likes of Macalpine, Sears, Travis Robinson, Vaughn Miller, Reece Chipman, KPX, Graham Weatherford and some other Politicos and Activists.....working together for Bahamians empowering them and making the wealth common? We can, and what a Party that would be. Just let us say we know of no such Party or plans thereof, nor do we know of any knowledge of the above even being able to formalize themselves as such. We want better just like everyone else does and our eyes forces us to look out towards those possibilities. Perhaps some political pigeon will lift from these pages and carry the message to those concerned. A few years ago thoughts along the line of a 3rd Party option was taboo, now today in light of Peter PLP and Paul FNM being identical twins.....that possibility may become our reality.

MORTON SALT

SALT ON OUR EYES
WHO SOLD
OUR SALT INDUSTRY?

SMH.....

BN Agent, X

Who originally sold our countries land of salt?

It began in the late 1930s, when three American brothers, the Ericksons, came to the island and built a mechanized salt operation. Known for seawater salt recovery, the Morton Salt Company bought the facility from the Erickson brothers in 1954. This site, comprising 300,000 acres on Great Inagua, produces about a million pounds of salt per year the second largest saline operation in North America.

The sun and wind provide the energy that evaporates the water and produces concentrated brine. Impurities are removed by controlled movement of the brine through reservoirs. The process contributes to the growth of an algal mat on the bottom of the reservoirs and prevents the seawater from drying up. Brine shrimp eat the algae, which helps keep the water clean, and flamingos and other shorebirds eat the shrimp, thus producing an ongoing cycle of man and nature working together.

So let's get this straight we produce salt in Inagua, package it and import it back into our food stores on our shelves at a double mark up of its original cost. To say that salt was sprinkled in our eyes is an understatement and we must now rinse our eyes and become true owners over what is truly ours. Hmmm, how is it that in a country where salt production has existed for more than 80 years that not one other salt producing or Bahamian owned salt production company exist?

While we understand that the origin of many deals with foreigners in our country came with some element of exclusivity Bahamians must now take control of their portion and stop being salty our future depends on it.

JUICING IN PUBLIC IN BAIN TOWN .. RAT ON YOUR BREAD

BN Agent, V

This is it we are throwing in the towel after this one. A street walker by the name of Rat (The male) and Neccy (the female) was caught on camera yesterday in broad day light doing the waaahoo waahooo with no rubbers in an old dilapidated building. When Neccy got confronted by the camera women being asked if this is why she likes to come Bain Town, Neccy replied with a slur in shock that she was caught. When rat was asked in this town he replied " This puy bey" with a huge smile on his face as he continued stroking even as he was being filmed. We cant make this stuff up. The video content of Rat and Neccy is to explicit for us to attach to the digital paper but boy I tell ya, when you'll do see this video by any way possible, just brace your self becasue this is a true representation of Nassau is not a real place.
