STUDS FIGHT OVER ANOTHER FEMALE

BN Agent, V

It's been said that there is a man shortage and so two gals fighting for a man would be understandable. But what do you say when it's two gals fighting for another gal? BN was just as surprised as you (scratch head) the girls are servicing themselves and fighting to do so, well mudda sick (scratch head), well muddoes, well blow us down.

Gone are the days where such, same sex attractions were kept private and personal.

Nowadays studs just don't care and they are letting it all hang out, wigs, fists and nails.

MET GALA BAHAMIAN EDITION

BN Agent, X

If y'all weren't aware of the biggest staff christmas party outing to hit the island, let us inform you guys, it happened last night and a lot of people looked alright, some looked nice and then you had the 60% who just looked a hot mess. Baha Mar hosted its major staff Christmas party, this wasn't their first staff christmas party since they have been open, but you can basically say it kinda is their first major christmas party, seeing that the resort is now fully in operation and taking over the hotel industry in Nassau.

Well they hosted the MET GALA - Escape to Asia theme christmas party, which was supposed to be a China based theme dress code for all guests. Well if you did attend you kinda seen that some people got the memo and then there's that 60% of persons who just wanted to do their own thing and came in the building dressed in African theme, London theme, Bamboo Shack theme, you name it they had their own type of theme dress code. You know it's serious when someone has the guts to put a lion head on the shoulder like the movie Coming to America. Baha Mar never should of told Bahamians they were going to a Met GALA, from they hear a named event like that was taking place. Every last Bahamian who got an invitation, went to Home Fabric and called up their stylist, to have there own custom tailor look and trust us they sure did look customized alright. From big to small last night fashion show of staff outfits were one of a kind, some persons had on 20 different colors, while others stuck to basic hues. But as it stands last night will go down in history as the most horrific outfit selection night for Bahamians thus far.

But party wise, everyone has said they had a wonderful time and it was a great experience.

When we be allowed to own our own?

BN Agent, X

At some point and time you may say maybe the government will allow Bahamians to own a part of some sort of major industry or service which will allow each citizen to collect a decent check at the end of the year like countries like Dubai, Singapore or even Panama which collects a payment from each vessel that passes through its canal.

The cost of moving a ship through the Panama Canal has tripled over the past five years to around $450,000 per passage for a vessel carrying 4,500 containers, and this figure is likely to go up upon completion of the expansion process.

Containership Pays Nearly $1 Million Toll to Cross the Expanded Panama Canal. With the opening of the Panama Canal expansion in June 2016.

So with these tools being used in other countries, the big question we should ask is why is it that 3 trillion worth of oil cargo passes through our water and we are not taxing any of these vessels? Even in the air space industry, we are not charging companies to pass through our air space.

POLICE FIRE WARNING SHOT & GETS PUNCH

BN Agent, X

A warning shot meant to restore law and order is not needed but rather is received as an alarm to attack the Police Officer the person who symbolizes the very essence of such.

Now brutality against Police Officers is nothing that BN condones and is flat out wrong. What type of savages do we now have on the streets. This incident unfolded Saturday night outside of Starz Lounge, when a group of men got into an argument which led to them fighting. During the process of the fight to undercover cops began to shoot live rounds in the air when all of a sudden the men fighting turned on both policemen with guns and begin fighting them both. The fight ended a short time after with some of the men getting to escape and a very few being arrested. We can only imagine what those drunk fighters were thinking when they saw two men shooting bullets in the air. Maybe they thought everyone's life was at risk so they decided to attack the shooters, hey you never know, liquor can make people do some very wild things.

A Cabinet Minister and a sitting MP both also owe the Education Loan Authority thousands. Both of their names were removed from the published list of those who owe funds to the Authority. Sources inside the Authority have confirmed both Minister for Youth Sports and Culture, Lanisha Rolle, and MP for West End, Pakeisha Parker, owe the Authority thousands in student loans. However, both MPs are paying their debt. Meanwhile, our sources also confirm Senator Renard Eric Henfield, whose name made the list of persons years in delinquency, owed the Authority - as far back as February 7th, 2017 - some $89,120.04. Senator Henfield told the media he paid his debt from 2004. However, he failed to confirm that he was in contact with the sitting Senator. creditors in 2017. This fact suggests Henfield lied to the media and failed to tell the truth. Minister of Education Jeff Lloyd told the media he has ordered an investigation into how Henfield's name was published when he could have been contacted as a
